Overview:

ASSOFOODTEC, with its diverse product mix, best reflects the varied world of food processing technologies, and UCMA (manufacturers of machinery for the food industry), whose member companies operate in as many as eleven production sectors, is its most representative component.

The member firms offer an extensive, specialist range of products-- from single machines to the most sophisticated systems for bread and other baked products, pasta, snacks, oil, etc.-- significant examples of one of the most solid and lively Italian production sectors which, thanks to the high volume of exports, rank Italy as a world leader.

A natural trend towards exporting and constant challenges in markets with the most complex needs on the one hand, and the availability of significant traditional food resources on the other, have meant strong incentives for the industry in Italy to build machines able to combine respect for tradition with technologically advanced production processes.

A focus on the various elements of the world food industry scenario and the ability to provide adequate technological solutions have been translated into the key strong points of Italian production: versatility and adaptability. These are two elements which, combined with the high quality standard, contribute to the enduring and unwavering success of Italian technologies.

UCMA, on the strength of the representative nature of its member firms and intensive work in the technical and standards, trade

fair and
promotional and economic and
statistical fields,
constitutes the
most important
national association and central frame of reference for all international trade operators.
